Frequently Asked Questions

When Should I Visit the Career Center?

As soon as possible! Because we operate on a developmental model, we offer a full range of services to students from first year through graduate school. We advise that students use our services starting their first year on campus. Attending skill-building workshops, information sessions, and panel discussions are excellent ways to help students begin to develop a career focus.

Is There a Fee for Career Center Services?

Most services are covered by your registration fees. Access to online services, career counseling, workshops, virtual campus interviews, and career fairs are all free to currently enrolled students. Some services such as career assessments and Interfolio (the letters of reference file service) require a fee.

Do career assessments tell me what career I should choose?

Career assessments are an excellent resource for helping individuals inform decisions about careers, but they do not measure education, skill or aptitude. They capture interests and preferences we share with those in various career fields. Research is clear that sharing interests with those with whom we work helps us enjoy our jobs. When we enjoy our jobs we are more likely to be successful.

Can I Access Career Center Services During the summer?

The Career Center is open year-round. Students who return home for the summer can utilize our online services at careers.ucr.edu as well as schedule a phone or virtual career counseling appointment.

Will the Career Center Find a Job for Me?

The Career Center is not a placement agency. We provide resources and developmental education to assist you in finding a career path and acquiring the skills necessary to secure a job within that path. We feel that these skills are essential and will help you in the marketplace long after you graduate.

Will I Be Able to Interview on Campus?

Yes, our Virtual Campus Interview Program brings dozens of employers to campus each year. Students who meet employer eligibility are able to interview without the difficulties of traveling to a distant location. Various companies participate such as Amazon, City Year, Deloitte, Kohl's, LA Dept. of Water & Power, Peace Corps, PepsiCo, Southern California Edison, Target, and more.

Will Career Assessment Testing Tell Me What Career Is Best?

While assessments do a good job of helping connect your interests and personality with career ideas, they should not be seen as a foolproof means of choosing a career. Career assessments should be used in collaboration with workshops, counseling, and advice from family and friends to help you find a broad career path that offers many possibilities for personal and professional growth.

Should I Work While in School?

We believe that during the first quarter of your first year, most students should not work. This gives time to settle into a routine of studying, getting engaged on campus, and focusing on the future. After the fall quarter, most students can and should consider part-time work, undergraduate research, internships, and work-study opportunities as ways of amplifying your education and broadening your view of the world.
